The advices from Canton come down to yesterday, (25th June), per Willanette, but we have not received our usual advices. We have been favored with the following intelligence:

"The news continues very bad indeed. Part of the suburbs were blazing when the Willanette left, having been set fire to by the Allies. Messra.—chop had been attacked, and some stink-pots thrown into it. Messra.—chop came down yesterday in tow of Willanette. The foreigners will doubtless have all to leave."

Can the Canton garrison be the same race of men whose laurels are yet green, who lately took Delhi, de-ended themselves in Lucknow, and did all those heroic deeds that are the admiration of the world? Or is it that the matchlocks and bows and arrows of the Braves are superior to our Minnie and our artillery our charge of bayonets, British hurrahs and all that? Or is the prowess of the Braves superior to that of the armed tribes in India, who we are told by last advices from India charged our troops with the bayonet thrice consecutively? Ichabod! Ichabod! Experimental legislation and Mandarin worshipping linguists have brought this calamity upon its.
